About

This Beneteau Oceanis 34 from 2009 and is a versatile sailboat designed for both marine and inland waterways. This sailboat has an overall length of 10.34 meters, with a hull length of 9.99 meters and a beam of 3.65 meters, providing her with a stable and comfortable sailing experience. The ship was built by Chantier Beneteau in France and is made of composite materials, which contributes to both the durability and low weight of the vessel. The design is by the renowned architect Jean-Marie Finot, with the interior provided by NAUTA Design, guaranteeing a functional and stylish interior. The sailboat is powered by a 21 kW (approx. 29 hp) Yanmar engine (model 3YM30), which ensures reliable performance when not sailing. With a water tank capacity of 160 liters and a fuel tank of 130 liters, this boat is suitable for longer trips at sea. In terms of interior space, the Oceanis 34 has two cabins and a spacious wet room. The interior offers comfort and functionality, ideal for both short and long sailing trips. The Oceanis 34 has a maximum clearance of 15.45 meters, which is important when passing bridges and other obstacles on inland waterways. With a ballast weight of 1,450 kg at a large draft, this sailboat offers good stability while sailing. In summary, the Beneteau Oceanis 34 is a reliable and versatile sailboat, perfect for sailors looking for comfort and performance both at sea and on inland waterways.
