About

The trip plan After having stocked up we leave on Monday in the late morning and return to the harbor of Marsala on Saturday evening. We disembark on Sunday morning. The following is a rough program of the holiday, considering a possible appropriate variations decided at the time by the Commander for safety reasons or by shared choice of the guests. Monday In the morning we wait for all the guests to arrive on board, we stock up and leave by 1pm towards Favignana. After a couple of hours of sailing we will reach the island. We visit Cala Rossa or Bue Marino beach or both. At sunset we will have an unmissable aperitif and to conclude a dinner at anchor. Night at anchor. Tuesday Navigation of about an hour and a half towards Levanzo, the smallest of the Egadi Islands. You can get off and visit the Grotta del Genovese, a place of important prehistoric discovery. We then navigate to its western side characterized by a rocky coast, it will be the right opportunity to do some snorkeling and discover the underwater ecosystem. We will then sail alongside the Capogrosso lighthouse and reach the bay of Cala Minnola. By swimming we could reach its beach where a characteristic pine forest extends. After some relaxation on land we reach our boat. Dinner at anchor and night at anchor. Wednesday Departure for Marettimo, the wildest island of the Egadi Islands archipelago. We moor near Punta Troia, for those who want they can reach land and via a suggestive path reach the castle. Evening at anchor. Thursday We will see some of the over 300 caves of Marettimo, rich in stalactites and reachable only by boat. In the afternoon we set sail towards the island of Favignana. We moor and reach the village full of typical and local shops. Night in port and dinner in a typical restaurant. Friday We continue the discovery of Favignana along the western side of the island until we reach the beach of Lido Burrone. Here we remain at anchor and enjoy the sea. In the afternoon we continue along the southern side until we reach the beautiful Cala Azzurra. Dinner and night at anchor. Saturday Navigation of the southern side of the island of Favignana. In the late afternoon we will return to the Port of Marsala. As a last dinner we recommend a typical restaurant a few steps from the marina. Night in port. Sunday We are at the end of this beautiful adventure. Disembarkation in the morning.
